

A Place Where Loving Assisted Living Comes Naturally

by Randy Woods

Buck and Terri Buckholtz are convinced that they are the luckiest business owners anywhere.

"We spend our time with some of the greatest people in the world, and we love it," they are quick to tell you.

Buck and Terri own and operate Unlimited Care Cottages, assisted living for senior adults in a homelike environment. Together they have 25 years of experience in health care and management, and they have created a comfortable and dignified style of assisted living in The Woodlands.

They presently own four homes on tree-shaded Budde Road and one on Cypresswood, and each serves as the home for seven residents, along with two live-in health care providers.

"Each resident has the assistance that he or she needs in a private, residential home," Terri says. "We have all the comforts of home, because it is a home."

Buck adds that the residents treat it as their own home. "And they don't like to be called old," he says. "They are 'chronologically gifted.'"

Residents are provided private bedrooms that they can customize with their favorite furnishings and mementos. Also large living rooms and dining areas provide an opportunity for interacting with other residents.

There is a well-trained caregiver staff assisting the residents 24-hours a day, 7 days a week. With sensitivity and respect, staff members assist in such activities as bathing, dressing, medications, meals and exercise. There is even a music therapist.

There is also specialized medical equipment available, as well as electronic room monitoring systems, regular visits by registered medical professionals, beauty and barber services, transportation coordination, and cleaning and laundry services.

"In short," says Terri, "We offer a safe, secure, caring environment that enhances the physical, mental and spiritual wellness of each resident. Our residents maintain independence and personal dignity, and we encourage visits by family members.

There is also a cadre of volunteers helping with various activities, such as container gardening, arts and crafts, hobbies beauty needs and exercise.

"You don't need any previous experience to help out with our seniors. Just a loving attitude and a willingness to share your time," says Buck.

Unlimited Care is a nursing center alternative and exceeds all state and local health care mandates and requirements.
